

Major organisations

There are six major global organisations that have freedom to travel throughout the world as they wish without requesting much authorisation from the respective countries governments which they wish to enter.

Characters must belong to one of these six main groups because travelling and carrying out missions may prove to be very difficult if one is to remain independent or work for a particular countries government or agency.

United Nations Watch

The UN Watch is governed by a diplomatic council with members from most countries around the globe, there is no 'Head Quarters' as such but their separate departments are divided fairly between the UN countries. Its prime objective is to investigate possible braking of 'United Nations' sanctions usually through groups of investigating agents. The UN is solely a diplomatic and investigative organisation however they do hold a small military force scrambled from around the globe. Jurisdiction for UN Watch agents is effective in all countries.

Interpol Special Investigation Service (I.S.I.S)

Comprised of private investigators chosen from specialist civilians and elite strike forces gathered from the finest government military organisations. I.S.I.S strives to counter international crime and terrorism. Investigating agents are given custodial and legal authority to carry out their duties by the government of the country they are in. Conformation of authority is usually granted within hours of requesting it.

Project Avery

Established in 1964 Project Avery was set up as the public's answer to the American governments UFO investigation group named Project Blue Book. Project Avery not only look into UFO's but also anything out of the ordinary including cryptozoology and paranormal activity. Avery is sometimes ridiculed by professional organisations and their methods are described as somewhat eccentric, nevertheless individuals from around the world join the growing ranks of these paranormal investigators and Ghostbusters. Funding behind this organisation comes mainly from rich sponsors and government backing or occasional scientific breakthroughs, however regular money is made by Project Avery's own publishing Broadcasting firm, hosting many interesting television shows and producing a number of interesting books.

United Associates of Mercury

This organisation is the worlds first body to successfully run a globally united research and study group that works together and shares all its information with its members. Primarily the group researches all aspects of science and medicine with its ultimate goal of curing world diseases. Laboratories and offices are based all over the world where all kinds of research take place. As Mercury is a peaceful organisation with a mission that benefits mankind, governments are always willing to accept them into their country.

Ordus Technologies

Ordus Technologies has made many enemies and alliances over the years, not to mention global headlines outraging various religious parties over their research into integrating technology with the human body. The latest project at Ordus is the study of human psychic potential enhanced by machinery and pharmaceuticals.

The Teo Tung Cartel

Possibly the worlds largest and most well known business organisation in the world, the Teo Tung Cartel is also rumoured to be connected to every organised crime syndicate around - This of course has never been proven. Members of the Teo Tung Cartel are incredibly respected and spread throughout the world.
